

7 Anos Secuestrado Por las Farc

By Luis Eladio Perez, Dario Arizmendi

AGUILAR, United States, 2008. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 231 x 157 mm. Language: English, Spanish . Brand New Book. Luis Eladio Perez shared the terrible experiences of living in captivity the humiliations, ill-treatment and total loss of human dignity; the continuous clashes, intolerance and differentiations made by his fellow captives; the constant hunger; the impotence of not having access to the most basic forms of medical care, for example the single daily aspirin that could treat a heart-attack or a renal crisis, not to mention having suffered three diabetic comas and two bouts of malaria. He also talked about the long and grueling forty-day walks through the heart of the jungle, his relationship with Ingrid Betancourt and with his fellow captives. He described the subhuman conditions they lived in which he refers to as the purest form of barbarism, the structure of the camps, their diet and daily routines, the chains used to hold them, the insects, snakes and tigers, the constant fear of insanity, the uncertainty of survival, and sex life in captivity. He gave me a detailed account of the dramatic escape plan hatched with Ingrid Betancourt, which they aborted of mutual accord. Dario Arizmendi.
